Re: Atlantic Recording Corp., et al. v. Project Playlist, Inc., No. 08-CV-3922 (DC)

Dear Jay:

As you and I have discussed, at the Court conference in the above-referenced action held last Friday, October 23, 2009, the Court denied our request to stay discovery for an additional thirty days while Project Playlist secures the alternate financing necessary to close the settlement and license agreements with the UMG and Warner plaintiffs. As we also discussed, the Court set a fact and expert discovery deadline of April 16, 2010. We therefore agreed that because of the anticipated cost of that discovery, and the fact that the matter has proven to be more complex (and therefore more protracted and expensive) than Project Playlist and Wilson Sonsini originally anticipated, it would make sense for Project Playlist to retain a smaller, less expensive firm to represent it in the action through the discovery process. To this end, we have agreed: (1) that Wilson Sonsini will seek to withdraw as counsel for Project Playlist in the action with the consent of Project Playlist; and (2) that a smaller law firm with lower billing rates should be retained as soon as possible by Project Playlist to continue the defense of Project Playlist. I had a similar conversation with Robert Kory last Friday.

In order to memorialize that Project Playlist has consented to Wilson Sonsini's withdraw as counsel to it in the above-referenced action, I ask that you please sign this letter in the space provided below.

It has been a pleasure working with you, and I wish Project Playlist the best of luck going forward.

Sincerely,

WILSON SONSINI GOODRICH & ROSATI PC
